On a recent expedition to the North Pole, Professor Trafrase and his team discovered the frozen bodies of some very strange creatures. It is suspected that they might be aliens. They do not wish to move the bodies and so have drawn some pictures of what they looked like. The Professor has asked other scientists to name the creatures and to design a key to classify them.

Look carefully at Professor Trafrase's drawings and on the line below each one write down a suitable name for each creature. Next, in the space below the drawings, design either a branching key or a statement key which would allow another scientist to discover the names you have given to each creature.
